From the Editor: When I was working at Outward Bound Professional, I once had a Microsoft engineer pass on a little goal setting sheet to me, which he and others used in his work. I oddly found that, when setting my goals down on paper, I'd often lose track of time...and the paper. I'd find my notes a few weeks or even months later. I'd also find that I'd accomplished all the goals I'd put down. I reckon, it's a bit like visualising a free and just world. You envision it, and before you know it, "Wow, I prayed for this, and it's here, it's actually happening". Anyone else feel this sort of thing? I trust what's happening in the USA will have a knock-on effect here in NZ. I also see there are many of us working on that vision. Well done you!

Concerns raised over planned "Biosafety Level 2" biolab in Nelson

Nelson is about to have a Level P2 Lab working on live viruses

Kimer labs are about to set up a level 2 lab working to find "broad antivirals" for a wide range of pathogens including

DENGUE FEVER

ZIKA

New Zealand is lucky to have neither of these mosquito borne devastating diseases in our country.

A level 2 lab is permitted to store and use LIVE VIRUSES

Were the Nelson population informed of this?

Were New Zealanders informed of this?

That would be two NO's.

A leak from such a lab could be a catastrophe and could introduce either of these tropical diseases into NZ

According to BSL-2 safety guidelines, these laboratories handle "moderate-risk infectious agents" that can be transmitted to humans, including viruses like equine encephalitis and HIV, as well as common bacterial infections like staphylococcus aureus.

BSL-2 facilities are required to follow strict biosafety protocols, including the use of protective equipment, restricted access, and decontamination procedures to prevent accidental exposure or leaks. Read the rest of this story here:

Calls for Market Removal of Covid-19 Vaccines Intensify as Evidence Accumulates

From Dr Matt Shelton of NZDSOS (NZ Doctors Speaking Out with Science)

We've just checked our website analytics and believe our supporters have sent over 2,000 statements to the Health Select Committee delivering hard-hitting evidence about the unchecked risks of gene editing.

At NZDSOS, we've been speaking out about gene technology since we formed in April 2021, posting over 51 articles on the subject.

As the first NZ doctors to raise the alarm about the true harms of the pandemic response, we're still battling relentless censorship while pushing for withdrawal and full investigation of covid-19 injections.

The court ruling about the actions of the Medical and Dental Councils that went against us – with crushing costs of $100,000 – shows just how far they'll go to silence independent medical voices.

We've also incurred an additional $40,000 in court costs working to protect babies' brains from fluoridation.

But we won't back down.

We believe the strength of our evidence may be forcing change at the Ministry of Health.

We're laser-focused on three urgent missions:

- Halting covid-19 injections until a full, transparent investigation exposes the truth
- Exonerating doctors and health professionals who risked everything to speak out during the covid response
- Ensuring Phase 2 of the Royal Commission of Inquiry finally hears the full story of what happened to New Zealand

As is our Kiwi way, we are hitting above our weight and sit alongside our international colleagues including FLCCC and Children's Health Defence fighting to halt the injections. This isn't just a fight for science or ethics—it's a fight for justice. The cost of challenging the hypernormalisation* of these issues is steep, and we rely entirely on supporters like you to keep going.

Your donation today powers:

- Our continued fight to stop the vaccines being used and to get the harm acknowledged and investigated
- Our legal appeal against the Medical Council's attempt to silence doctors
- Support for health professionals who dared to speak truth
- Amplified voices of those censored by mainstream media
- Our sustained efforts to engage with authorities—the dam wall will eventually break

In 2025, we're deploying more ways to take action than ever before. But we can only succeed with you by our side.

Your support can be the difference between silence and truth, between concealment and transparency. Every dollar you contribute brings us closer to a New Zealand where medical freedom and truth prevail.

The truth is, without your support doing this work will be impossible.

The Gene Technology Bill showed what we can achieve together. Now, let's take that same energy and determination to these crucial battles. Will you stand with us with a monthly donation of $25?

Calls for Market Removal of Covid-19 Vaccines Intensify as Evidence Accumulates

NZDSOS Calls for Removal of COVID-19 Vaccines

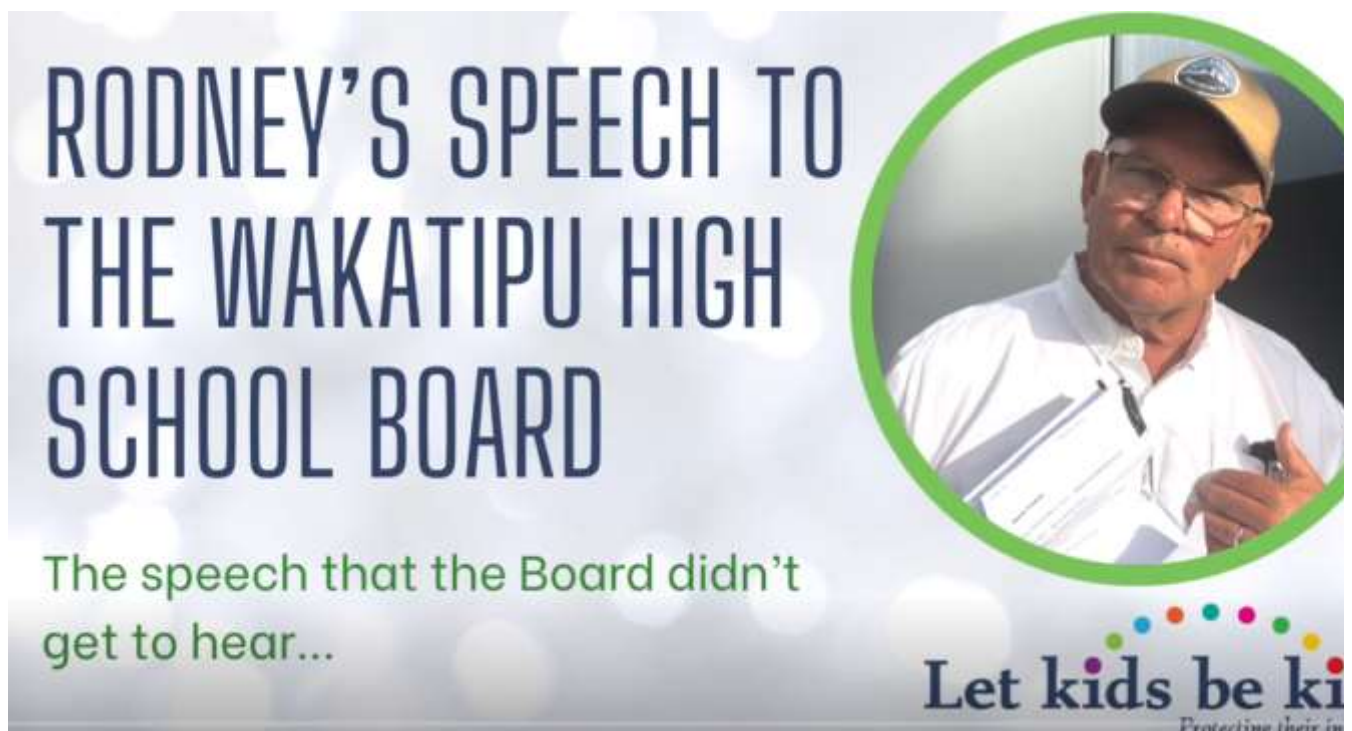

During the past four years we have made repeat calls to New Zealand authorities for urgent removal of Covid-19 vaccines due to the multitude of potential harms they can cause, combined with real-world evidence of population health being seriously affected. Our most recent letter of 24 December 2024 focuses on concerns following as-yet unpublished research from the Yale LISTEN study in which persistent vaccine-produced spike protein was found circulating in the bloodstream of participants two years after vaccination. This strongly suggests the possibility of DNA transfection into the human genome.

Geneticist Kevin McKernan detected DNA identical to Pfizer sequences in a tumour biopsy taken from a man one year after his fourth dose of Pfizer vaccine. McKernan wrote about his findings and delivered a more lay-friendly presentation of the information, in October 2024. Our December letter also repeated ongoing urgent concerns about amyloidosis, and the white clots which continue to be found in blood vessels of some mRNA injected people since the vaccine rollout. These are most likely caused by the phenomenon of frameshifting, which can result in the production of aberrant proteins.

Peer Reviewed Study Calls for Removal of COVID-19 Vaccines

A peer reviewed article published in January 2025, in Science, Public Health Policy and the Law, Review: Calls for Market Removal of COVID-19 Vaccines Intensify as Risks Far Outweigh Theoretical Benefits features NZDSOS amongst the 17 professional public health and physician organisations calling for the removal of these products. Rodney Hide finally made it to his local school board meeting to share his concerns with the Sex Ed curriculum, only to be told he can't record what he says. So he recorded it outside for us to hear:

"Thank you for the opportunity to speak today. Thank you too for your service and support for the School. I very much appreciate it.

I want to share my experience as a Parent of the School's Relationship and Sexuality Education curriculum or what is known as RSE.

I am here because RSE is a Board responsibility.

Time to get out of the NZ Paris Agreement Circus

From Groundswell NZ: An update on the Government's recent decision to increase New Zealand's emissions reduction targets even higher than the previous Government and asking for your support for our campaign to get New Zealand out of the Paris Agreement circus all together.

Is this what you voted for? It was only in the run up to Christmas that National announced they would still put a Farming Tax on agricultural emissions by 2030. Now they're promising to hit us harder than Labour planned.

Inflation might be easing off, but only growth will get us back to the purchasing power we used to have, and that growth can't happen if we're promising to cut our already low emissions in the only ways available to us.

Climate Change Minister Simon Watts is in a bind, but he gets no sympathy from us. With James Shaw and Jacinda Ardern making the ridiculous promise in 2021 to cut our 2005 emissions in half by 2030, by the rules of the international climate change game, he had to promise a higher number for the next five years and made the smallest promise he could: an extra 1-5%.

But New Zealand doesn't elect governments to play along with international games. We expect them to look out for our interests. They work for us, not the jet-setting global conference elite.

It's the politicians' jobs to figure this out and stand up for us. Rather than sacrifice the future of New Zealand to meet the arbitrary rules of the UN's climate change process, Simon Watts should have broken those rules and told his mates at the conferences why.

The Paris Agreement was always uniquely unfair to New Zealand. It requires countries to reduce their emissions based on their 2005 levels, no matter what they were.

New Zealand – with our hydro-powered electric grid and an efficient agriculture sector that feeds an order of magnitude more than our own population – has to start from a low base, while others get accolades for shutting off their coal power plants.

Even the most ardent climate change fanatic must understand that New Zealand is left in a bind with no way to comply but poverty.

Under that system, there's no winning for New Zealand. All we can do is less. Less farming, less electricity, less transport, less economic activity, less prosperity, less opportunity. Fewer jobs, fewer people, fewer hospitals and schools, fewer reasons for our kids to stay in New Zealand.

In fact, trying to comply is completely counterproductive. Any reduction in NZ exported food means some less regulated, less efficient farm somewhere in the world replaces our products while putting out more emissions.

There is no emissions reduction plan that Simon Watts can implement here that complies with the Paris Agreement rules without making us poorer. Any way you cut it, herds will have to shrink and we'll have to get used to poorer living.

The large emitters know the climate change deals are a ruse. Some are willing to say so out loud, like the US and Indonesia pulling out already.

Even if National still felt it had to take steps to reduce emissions because the middle voter wants it, at least that would be democracy here in our country, not fitting in with some international scheme that couldn't care less about the details of our situation. The sovereign government of New Zealand could decide for itself what the right path forward is.

It might even decide to take it easy on farmers, for once, so we can increase our exports and bring down global emissions by outcompeting the high-emitting farming overseas. (We can dream, anyway.)

It's becoming clear that the only way forward to a prosperous, self-governing New Zealand is to throw off the nonsense of the Paris Agreement to protect our weak-willed politicians from the pressure they clearly can't handle.

Bryce, if you can, consider joining our campaign to quit Paris by clicking here to make a donation.

It seems ACT is already on a similar wavelength, with David Seymour saying just yesterday that:

"There is a wider question of whether the Government of New Zealand should be committed to the Paris Accord when half of the world appears to be pulling out of it anyway — and that is a discussion for another time and perhaps another election."

Perhaps not all of our politicians are the problem.

We have a real opportunity get the New Zealand public on board and end the Paris Agreement debacle holding us back. With your support, we can do it.

Concerned Farmers

With everything going on, you might not be aware of the Government's proposed changes to GMO (genetically modified organisms) legislation. There could be a lot of potential good in GMO development, but it's something we need to be careful about.

If these changes are something you're concerned about, it's worth checking out www.concernedfarmersnz.org.

Liz Gunn's Appeal Upheld by NZ Court: Found not guilty of assault

SUMMARY OFFENCES ACT 1966 - SECT 9

The decision from Justice Peters on the original SUMMARY OFFENCES ACT 1966 - SECT 9 case against Liz Gunn has come in and Gunn's appeal has been upheld. In short, Gunn has been found, and rightfully so, not guilty of assault.

[23] The Court in Collins found that the actions of the police officer in holding on to the woman's arm went beyond laying a hand on a sleeve or tapping a shoulder and suchlike — went beyond what would generally be considered acceptable — and so was unlawful and did constitute an assault.

[24] The significance of Collins in this case is that certain forms of contact are considered generally acceptable, and one is touching a person to engage their attention, provided that no greater degree of physical contact is employed than is reasonably necessary in the circumstances.

[25] Ms Gunn's touch was fleeting and to gain C's attention. Ms Gunn used no greater degree of physical contact or force than was reasonably necessary for that purpose. Accordingly, on the face of Collins, what occurred in this instance was within the bounds of what is considered acceptable, i.e. was not unlawful.

believed C consented to what occurred. That was because, in the Judge's view, by then the discussion between Ms Gunn and C had become "confrontational and hostile (on the part of Ms Gunn)", and that Ms Gunn had been "rude and inappropriate" in asking C where she was from.¹⁰ (I need not get into the detail of why Ms Gunn asked C that.) However, having viewed/heard what occurred (several times) I do not share the Judge's view of the tenor of the discussion or of Ms Gunn's manner. My assessment is that Ms Gunn was polite, albeit assertive and wishing to communicate her view to C.

[27] It follows that I consider Ms Gunn's touch of C's arm was within the ambit of what the law considers generally acceptable physical contact occurring in everyday life, and so was not an assault in the sense of s 9 of the Act. I am satisfied the Judge erred, to such an extent that a miscarriage of justice has occurred. Given that, I am required to allow this appeal.

Liz writes that, "Matthew Hague of Frontline Law said the last case dealing with this legal point was in the 80's, so this recent case is now a leading precedent."

Gunn also wrote on her substack, "If you are one of the wonderful humans in this country and overseas, who chose to give me messages of support and concern, through these last two dark years, or to offer financial help so I could pay Hague and Timothy Leighton of Frontline Law to act on my behalf, in the case itself, and in the two appeals we, and if you turned up at court on those appearances we had do (because the Police never fronted up with the Airport Security Camera Evidence until 18 months after the arrest), I offer you my most sincere and grateful thanks." adding,

"This is my victory today but it's a victory that I hope will give courage to all Kiwis who have been wrongly accused and prosecuted under our WEF-led puppet governments.

One victory can become two victories, can become four victories, can become The People winning back our country from those who have so betrayed us." You can read more and watch Liz Gunn's full commentary here:

Chinese warships conduct live fire exercises in Tasman Sea

From Voices for Freedom:

Three Chinese warships conducted live fire exercises in the Tasman Sea over the weekend, forcing commercial airliners to divert flight paths. Prime Minister Christopher Luxon said China had not informed New Zealand about the ships' movements or their purpose, but added that they were in international waters and so the activities remained within international law.

The exercises were planned only days after the Cook Islands negotiated an investment deal with China without first notifying New Zealand about its contents, as would be expected under current diplomatic arrangements. New Zealand has also moved closer to joining the AUKUS military alliance with the US, UK and Australia in recent months.

Australia's Prime Minister Anthony Albanese said of the exercises that China did not follow best practice, but also indicated that Australia engages in similar activities in the South China Sea. He said while concerns were raised with China, Australia would not pursue the issue. Earlier in February, Australian and Chinese aircraft came into close contact over the South China Sea. Trump Signs Order Cutting Funding for Schools With COVID Vaccine Mandates

President Trump signed an executive order halting federal funding for schools that mandate the COVID-19 vaccine. Trump directed newly sworn-in Health and Human Services (HHS) Secretary Robert F. Kennedy Jr., along with the head of the Department of Education, to end COVID vaccine mandates, report on institutions that don't comply, and develop a system to cut off federal funding. More on this here:

And this From the Whitehouse:

PROHIBITING COVID-19 VACCINE MANDATES IN SCHOOLS: Today, President Donald J. Trump signed an Executive Order to prohibit federal funding for COVID-19 vaccine mandates in schools.

The Order bars federal funds from being used to support or subsidize an educational service agency, state education agency, local education agency, elementary school, secondary school, or institution of higher education that requires students to have received a COVID-19 vaccination to attend in-person education programs.

The Secretary of Education and the Secretary of Health and Human Services must issue guidelines for compliance and provide a plan to end coercive COVID-19 vaccine mandates, including a report on non-compliant entities and a process for preventing federal funds from supporting educational entities that impose COVID-19 vaccine mandates.

PUTTING AN END TO GOVERNMENT OVERREACH: President Trump is committed to protecting personal freedoms and ensuring that Americans' education isn't conditioned on unnecessary government mandates.

HHS Secretary Robert F. Kennedy Jr. just made a bold pledge that has put the entire health establishment on notice: “NOTHING is going to be off limits” in his investigation into the chronic disease epidemic. Kennedy named the industries and products that will face the heat including: the childhood vaccine schedule, electromagnetic radiation, glyphosate, other pesticides, ultra-processed foods, artificial food additives, SSRIs and other psychiatric drugs, and microplastics. He also promised to investigate topics once considered untouchable, saying, “Some of the possible factors we will investigate were formally taboo or insufficiently scrutinized.” “Whatever belief or suspicion I have expressed in the past, I’m willing to subject them all to the scrutiny of unbiased science. That is going to be our template—unbiased science.” Kennedy then issued a call for scientific honesty, suggesting that health agencies had previously abandoned studies to protect powerful interests in the past. Kennedy also said he’s going to create a better federal system for reporting vaccine injuries. - <https://vigilantfox.news/p/rfk-jr-vows-nothing-is-gonna-be-off>

Conservative leader Pierre Poilievre has vowed to “depoliticize” news media financing, defund the CBC, roll back federal handouts to legacy media and allow independent media into the Parliamentary press room. “We have to depoliticize news media finance. Because right now, what happens is that there are subsidies that go to favoured media outlets that CRA designates, and then there’s not funding for others,” he said. “Of course, the worst example is CBC, which gets this enormous subsidy to do largely what Canadians can get elsewhere.” - <https://www.junonews.com/p/poilievre-calls-to-depoliticize-news>

9TH Circuit Court has rule that all of Biden’s pre-pardons are unconstitutional and therefore null and void.

The Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE) said on Feb. 17 that a total of $4.7 trillion worth of payments from the Treasury Department are almost impossible to trace because of missing account identification codes. Codes were not assigned for trillions of dollars worth of payments as the field was considered optional, according to the agency. This makes traceability almost impossible,” DOGE stated. “As of Saturday, this is now a required field, increasing insight into where money is actually going. - <https://www.theepochtimes.com/us/doge-says-4-7-trillion-in-treasury-payments-missing-identification-codes-5811855>

Telling It Like It Is / Truth Bombs

JB Handley writes in a substack entitled ‘Free Dr. Andrew Wakefield’: “Trying to convince the public that vaccines are always “safe and effective” forces officials to lie, exaggerate, and cajole the public. A backlash is inevitable as more and more people discover the truth for themselves. Like any cover-up, the choice public health officials are making right now is just postponing the day of reckoning. Truth always comes out in the end. Can we just get on with it? And while we’re doing it, restore the reputations and credentials of the doctors courageous enough to tell the truth.” - <https://open.substack.com/pub/jbhandley/p/free-dr-andrew-wakefield>

A poll published Wednesday by the Metropolis Institute found that nearly twice as many Canadians believe stating their gender identity and/or pronouns during work phone or video calls reinforces stereotypes, rather than breaking them down. The only age group in which more people believed it would help to break down stereotypes was 25- to 34-year-olds, with only 1 per cent more people in that age group believing it broke down stereotypes compared to encouraging them. Every other age group believed it would do more harm than good. - <https://www.junonews.com/p/more-canadians-say-stating-pronouns>

A recent study by the Fraser Institute looking at the energy projects needed to meet the energy requirements of Canada’s growing population, all while fully “decarbonizing” electricity generation, determined it would be an unachievable goal. The energy growth requirements for

Canada to achieve “net zero by 2050” are likely “impossible to achieve,” a new study found. - <https://www.junonews.com/p/energy-requirements-to-achieve-federal>

Abbotsford school trustee Jared White is speaking out against gender ideology in schools. White stated: “No more biological males in women’s/girls’ sports. No more biological males in women’s/girls’ bathrooms and locker rooms. No more teaching vulnerable children that they can be both genders or neither. Enough. Common sense is making a comeback, and it’s about time.” His remarks reflect the concerns of many parents who feel their voices have been ignored in discussions about school policies. In response to a PR news release from the American Association for the Advancement of Science aimed at criticizing RFK Jr. Nate writes: “It seems that the scientific establishment seems more concerned about their funding and jobs rather than “doing actual science.” I see a kind of incestuous, self-congratulations for “upholding current scientific consensus views” and a disdain for professionals who fall outside the consensus. In the defense of sciences, the “need to deal with anti-science” has become “anti-science.” - <https://www.chemistryworld.com/news/aaas-leadership-speaks-out-against-trump-administrations-attacks-on-science/4020982.article>

The “We Can Do This” campaign was a nationwide public health messaging initiative launched by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) to promote COVID-19 vaccination, masking, and other pandemic-related measures. From August 2020 to June 2023, the campaign was developed in partnership with the Fors Marsh Group, a behavioral research and advertising firm, and was backed by over $900 million in taxpayer funds. A House Report confirms that HHS, CDC, and the “We Can Do This Campaign” repeatedly overstated vaccine effectiveness, falsely claimed vaccines prevented transmission and dismissed natural immunity. According to the U.S. House of Representatives We Can Do This report, the campaign failed to achieve its intended goal and, instead, contributed to a collapse in public trust in the CDC and other public health institutions. The report provides a thorough analysis of how shifting and misleading messaging by the CDC and HHS weakened public confidence. It highlights specific instances where public health officials exaggerated vaccine effectiveness, promoted policies that later had to be reversed, and created a false illusion of consensus by silencing dissenting scientific voices. It was structured around a narrative of certainty—a confident declaration that vaccines would stop transmission and allow a full return to normal life. The report highlights how these overstatements damaged the credibility of health agencies when real-world evidence quickly contradicted them. A central theme of the report is how HHS’s reliance on behavioral science tactics to modify public attitudes ultimately backfired. By treating persuasion as the goal rather than scientific transparency, the campaign eroded the credibility of public health agencies, not just for COVID-19 but across the board. Dr Jay Bhattacharya, reflecting on this aspect of the report, stated, “Probably the most important recommendation: HHS should never again adopt a policy of silencing dissenting scientists in an attempt to create an illusion of consensus in favor of CDC groupthink.” The enforced consensus created an echo chamber, preventing necessary debate and ensuring policies were driven more by politics than by science. - <https://popularrationalism.substack.com/p/public-trust-fallout-of-the-hhss>

Bruce Parly writes: “We find ourselves members of a beleaguered, corrupted, manipulated society. Vested interests and sacred cows make meaningful reform impossible. Canada is a country in retreat, more interested in redistributing wealth than in producing it, more resolved to administer than to build, and more prone to languish than to strive. Its people have traded freedom for the appearance of safety, and competition for the solidarity of victimhood. Its culture punishes risk and rewards conformity. Its elites collaborate with foreign powers and global institutions. They sacrifice the interests of the people to plunder the country of what remains of its prosperity. For a privileged class of “public servants”, Canada has become a grift.” - <https://brucepardy.substack.com/p/a-declaration-of-independence-for>

Dr. Deborah Birx, in an apparent effort to save her own skin, is admitting what the “conspiracy theorists” knew all along. Dr. Birx, who served as White House Coronavirus Response Coordinator under President Trump, admitted during a recent appearance on Piers Morgan Uncensored that the government botched the COVID response by overlooking early treatment. “What I witnessed was a lot of undiagnosed disease that could have been treated early that then resulted in COVID deaths,”. Birx also stated that the mRNA jab was developed to target those at high risk of severe illness, not the general population. “*The messenger RNA vaccine should have been rolled out for the people that were at risk for severe disease because that’s what the vaccine was developed for.” Birx also confessed the COVID shot was never “designed” to prevent infection - <https://vigilantnews.com/post/dr-deborah-birx-makes-two-shocking-covid-admissions/>

Commentary in the Epoch Times: “For decades, DEI ideology has been woven into the fabric of higher education in both the United States and Canada, not as a peripheral initiative but as a guiding orthodoxy, shaping hiring practices, curricula, and the broader intellectual climate. Rather than fostering open inquiry, it has reshaped academia into a vehicle for social engineering, where identity takes precedence over merit. DEI functions as a belief system, a quasi-religious conviction for many within the academy. The purpose of higher education was never to reshape society according to an abstract vision of social justice but to cultivate and enlighten the minds of students. Today, our universities operate as moralized bureaucracies, preserving ideological conformity through administrative decree and reinforcing it with professional gatekeeping.” - <https://www.theepochtimes.com/opinion/dei-in-higher-education-diverging-paths-in-us-and-canada-5807577>

A January ruling from the Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania has brought attention to the ongoing battle for food freedom for consumers. This decision, which centers on Amish farmers Amos and Rebecca Miller, allows them to sell their raw milk products outside the state while a lawsuit against them proceeds. The case not only addresses state regulations but also raises constitutional questions about individuals’ rights to purchase traditional foods directly from producers. The Millers’ farm serves customers through a private membership model, providing raw milk, grass-fed beef and various produce. However, it’s their raw milk that is sought by health-conscious consumers, which has also gained the ire of the government. The Commonwealth Court also acknowledged the Millers raised “potentially meritorious constitutional challenges,” including those tied to the Commerce Clause and the right to purchase traditional foods directly from producers. These points will now be examined more thoroughly during a full trial because of the ambiguity of the state law.

Medicine

The Louisiana Department of Health said it will no longer promote mass vaccination, according to a memo released by the state’s surgeon general this week. Louisiana Surgeon General Ralph Abraham had ordered his staff to stop engaging in media campaigns and community health fairs to encourage vaccinations. “While we encourage each patient to discuss the risks and benefits of vaccination with their provider, LDH will no longer promote mass vaccination.” Abraham was critical of blanket government mandates for vaccines and said that federal officials were erroneous in how they pushed for COVID-19 vaccines. His letter chided what he called “inaccurate and inconsistent guidance on masking, poor decisions to close schools, unjustifiable mandates on civil liberties, and false claims regarding natural immunity.” “But the greatest missteps were on vaccines and some continue to this day.” “Within months of their approval, COVID vaccines were shown to have no third-party benefit in terms of reduced transmission, yet they were still mandated—through both policy and social pressure.” Describing that as an “offense against personal autonomy that will take years to overcome,” he was then critical of current Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) guidelines that recommend 6-month-old children get vaccines for COVID-19. “Government should admit the limitations of its role in people’s lives and pull back its tentacles from the practice of medicine,” Abraham said, noting that he wants to regain the “public trust” by “acknowledging past missteps, refocusing on unbiased data collection, and providing transparent, balanced information for people to make their own health decisions.”

Dr Peter McCullough offers a restatement and new prioritization of the four pillars of US Childhood Vaccination Policy:

New and enhanced vaccine data safety monitoring system that goes beyond volunteer reporting by physicians and healthcare workers in VAERS.

The National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act (NCVIA) of 1986 should be rescinded or revised to remove liability protection for vaccine manufacturers for vaccine-related injuries and deaths.

ACIP schedule should not be a requirement for school attendance in America. The entire schedule should be independently reviewed in 2025 for medical necessity, clinical indication, and compound safety (giving many vaccines at the same time in young children).

Vaccines for Children program should be investigated for waste, fraud, and abuse by the Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE). - <https://www.thefocalpoints.com/p/restatement-of-the-four-pillars-of>

Ray Dalio: America's Hidden Civil War & the Importance of Community

Tucker [00:00:00] I've heard you say that the United States is in a civil war, and I think most Americans don't perceive that. Can you tell us what you mean?

Ray Dalio [00:00:08] Well, what I mean by a civil war, I should say, a type of civil war. Right. And what I mean is that there are irreconcilable differences that each side is willing to fight for in order to get the outcomes that they want. And that in that environment, the issues of how does the legal system work, is that going to stand in the way of that fight? Or is there going to be a fight that will. Make the cause more important than anything. So that's the type of situation that we're in. And those gaps, we understand there's there's wealth and values gaps. Right. We're entering into this. This is we've seen this through history. So where that goes is a different question. But we are in that type of civil war, are we not? Dalio closed by saying, "in the United States, which is the most powerful country in the world, by these measures, our life expectancy is five years less than Canadians. So they're right next to us and five years less than company are countries of equal income levels. Okay. So health, we don't there's poor correlation and unhappiness. There's no correlation. But they, like Indonesia, has the second highest happiness rating, you know. So all I'm saying

Dr Leigh Willoughby on Medical Gaslighting

Dr. Leigh Willoughby was a seasoned anaesthetist and functional medicine doctor at the onset of the COVID era in 2020. Initially, she trusted the virologists and her "infectious" diseases colleagues concerning the alleged deadly pandemic. She readied herself for an avalanche of sick patients...that never arrived. Leigh was warned by a workmate that the COVID vaccines were dangerous and plagued with serious adverse effects. However, due to several unrelated professional distractions, she later conceded that she failed to perform her "due diligence". Her subsequent acceptance of the shots led to a life-threatening complication and being removed from the medical register.
