From the Editor: Good news: NZDSOS, Anne O'Reilly, Kirsten Murfitt, the founders of VFF and countless others here in New Zealand continue to step up to the plate by keeping the pressure on to release the truth about the Covid debacle here, not to mention other big issues.

On another note, lately I've been using the term, "I hate to say, you told me so". When Trump was elected, my answer was "Time will tell." Well, we've been had. Who would have thought we'd be where we are now?

But there are also bright spots: New Zealand has formally rejected amendments to the International Health Regulations, which lay out how World Health Organisation member countries will handle future pandemics. As my friend Gerry Pyves recently said, "In these days, meditation is not a luxury, it's a necessity." Stay sane and remember to get outside and look at the trees. Challenging the Royal Commission's Phase Two Findings

From: NZDSOS

Justice Watch New Zealand has issued an open letter to Prime Minister Luxon challenging the Royal Commission's Phase Two findings as unlawful under the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act.

Justice Watch is a public advocacy and legal accountability group. In its third consecutive open letter to the Prime Minister and Government Ministers critiquing the Phase 2 report of the Covid Royal Commission, it argues New Zealand was rendered unfree and undemocratic such that the legal justification for the suspension of key elements of the Bill of Rights Act (BORA) claimed all along by the government and endorsed by the Commissioners was rendered moot.

Supporters Rally Behind Doctor During First Week of Disciplinary Hearing

Posted by: Anne O'Reilly

By Imogen Brophy

After nearly a five year wait, long serving Murupara GP Dr Bernard Conlon is half-way through his New Zealand Health Practitioners Disciplinary Tribunal hearing.

Since the hearing began on Monday, members of the community have shown their support for the doctor each day.

Kaikōrero o He Tākuta Tipua (a voluntary group coordinating Te Ika Whenua support for Dr Conlon) Mere Honeycombe said people from Murupara, Minginui, Galatea, Ruatāhuna and Kaingaroa communities have been eager to attend the hearings.

"Our goal was to stand united, be informed, and to confidently support our doctor while he is going through this ordeal," she said.

On the first day, around 200 supporters showed up to the hearing in Rotorua.

"From that hearing on that day, there were a few hiccups," she admitted but the hearings continued smoothly.

Every day since there have been "roughly around 50 to 60 people from our communities physically going in there to support him and his whānau." Read the article here.

The Concerns About Digital Driver Licenses Privacy Breaches and Government Overreach.

By Mark Freeman, Freedom Alliance, Proofreader NZ Rising Newsletter

Digital driver licences are coming to New Zealand this year, offering convenience but also bringing the risks of government overreach and privacy breaches.

From around mid-2026 New Zealanders will be able to store their licenses on a government app on their smartphones. Users' digital credentials – such as their names, photos and dates of birth – will be encrypted and stored on their devices. A user will be able to choose which information to share, such as their legal age, without revealing their name, date of birth or other personal information. The credentials will be authenticated through biometrics – facial scans or fingerprints. Read the rest of Mark's piece here.

Winston Peters of NZ First Party: NZ Rejects WHO Health Regulation Amendments

From: The Daily Telegraph NZ

New Zealand has formally rejected amendments to the International Health Regulations, which lay out how World Health Organisation member countries will handle future pandemics. New Zealand First leader Winston Peters says New Zealand has formally notified World Health Organization (WHO) that it has rejected the proposed amendments to the International Health Regulations.

In a statement on social media, Peters said New Zealand informed the WHO Director-General through New Zealand's Permanent Mission to the United Nations in Geneva, invoking Article 61 of the International Health Regulations to officially decline the amendments.

He said the decision reflects New Zealand First's long-held position that health decisions affecting New Zealanders should be made in Wellington rather than Geneva. Read the story here.

Beyond The Inquiry: Where To From Here

From: Voices For Freedom

After years of lockdowns, mandates, and extraordinary government powers, the Royal Commission's report on New Zealand's COVID-19 response has now been released. For many, its publication marks not an end point, but the beginning of a new phase of public discussion, reflection, and civic engagement.

Join Voices for Freedom for one of the first public forums examining the report and what this moment makes possible. Hear from experts, researchers, and advocates as they discuss key themes emerging from the findings, insights from the People's Report process and thousands of public submissions, and the opportunities ahead to strengthen accountability, transparency, and trust. NZ's ACC Pays $9.6m for C-19 Vaccine Injuries

From: GoodOil News

By: Chris Lynch

The Accident Compensation Corporation (ACC) in New Zealand has paid out over $9.6 million to 1,664 people injured by the Covid-19 vaccine.

Injuries include allergic reactions, sprain, cardiac injury, contusion, adverse drug reactions, anaphylactic reactions, infection, shoulder damage/injury, cellulitis, bursitis, inflammation and nerve damage.

The latest data covers the period from February 18, 2021, when vaccinations began in New Zealand, to April 6, 2024.

Of the 4,156 claims filed with the ACC, 1,664 were accepted, 2,440 were declined, and 52 remain undecided. Specifically, 504 of the accepted claims have led to payments exceeding $500 as of April 9, 2024. Read the rest of this article here.

Do we owe our Covid conspiracy friends an apology? - Heather du Plessis-Allan

Heather du Plessis-Allan is the drive host for Newstalk ZB and a columnist for the Herald on Sunday

Broadcaster Heather du Plessis-Allan asks: Do we owe our Covid conspiracy friends an apology?

ACC has accepted 1740 vaccine injury claims, with more allegations outstanding.

Perhaps we owe the Covid conspiracy theorists among us an apology. Not for dismissing their wackier claims, like the vaccine containing microchips and magnetising the jabbed. But perhaps for dismissing the stuff we now know to be true. Collectively we shut people down when they tried to convince us the jab was unsafe. They might have taken their theories too far, but in the end, they were right to some extent. The jab has been proven to hurt some people. ACC has accepted 1740 vaccine injury claims. There are more allegations outstanding. Read more here.

Energy Security Illusions: Why New Zealand's Fuel System Is a Ticking Economic Time Bomb

Editor's Note: The "alarmist headline" and title image here are not our style, but "Mj" is a solid reporter, author, and editor/founder of ELocal and Voice Media with a good track record, so in this case, we'll go with it.

By Mykeljon Winckel ELocal

New Zealanders recently received reassuring economic messaging from the banking sector, including commentary from Kiwibank suggesting that global oil market movements could ease domestic fuel pressures and improve inflation prospects.

But behind the optimism lies a deeper structural problem.

Unless the New Zealand Government takes immediate action on internal fuel pricing and supply resilience, any short-term economic gains will disappear quickly. The reality is that New Zealand's energy system has become dangerously fragile — and the consequences are already being felt across the economy.

A Country With No Refinery

New Zealand's vulnerability began in earnest when the Marsden Point Oil Refinery closed in 2022.

For decades the refinery processed imported crude into petrol, diesel, jet fuel and other products needed by the domestic economy. When refining ceased, New Zealand transitioned almost entirely to importing finished fuels. Read the rest of Mj's article here. You can read another updated article by Mj here.

Aly Cook Rejects Legally Toothless Select Committee And Demands Criminal Investigation

Aly Cook, board member of the New Zealand Outdoors & Freedom Party (NZOFP), says the time for inquiries and "lessons learned" is over. Following the release of the Royal Commission's Phase Two report, Cook is calling for immediate criminal investigation against the officials who suppressed evidence of harm from the novel mRNA vaccine and those who continued to promote it, despite being aware of the risks of myocarditis, pericarditis and other serious harm and even death.

Cook, whose son has a clinically diagnosed and ACC-accepted vaccine injury, has dismissed New Zealand First's call for a Select Committee as an insulting stalling tactic designed to avoid the courtroom.

The Erasure of Clinical Evidence

"Thousands of bereaved and injured New Zealanders have already poured their hearts out to the Covid Royal Commission of Inquiry. We gave them our evidence, and we were ignored," says Cook. "Inquiry Chair Grant Illingworth's opening statements made it clear he viewed the evidence of the injured as something that wasn't 'based in science.'" Read the full article here.

Extraordinary Powers. Tens Of Billions Spent. Accountability Isn't Too Much To Ask

The Taxpayers' Union says the release of the COVID-19 Royal Commission report confirms that ministers made some of the most significant decisions in modern New Zealand history while ignoring official advice.

Taxpayers' Union spokesperson Tory Relf says the report raises serious questions about accountability.

"New Zealanders were repeatedly told the Government was 'following the science'. The Royal Commission report shows that wasn't always the case."

"We now know that ministers kept Auckland in lockdown longer than officials advised and maintained vaccine mandates for teenagers despite safety warning against two-dose requirements."

"These were extraordinary decisions that cost taxpayers $66 billion and imposed some of the harshest restrictions anywhere in the developed world."

The Royal Commission of Inquiry-2 (RCI-2) revealed that COVID 'vaccine' safety concerns were concealed from Cabinet. Why Petrol Prices Jumped — and Why the Government Quietly Wins Every Time

Over the past week, petrol prices in New Zealand have climbed from under $3 per litre to around $3.22 for 91 octane. Most people assume this is just the global market doing what it does. But there's a detail almost nobody talks about:

When petrol prices rise, the government gets an automatic tax windfall — even though none of the fuel excise rates change at all. Here's how it works.

Fixed taxes vs percentage taxes

New Zealand's fuel taxes come in two layers:

1. Fixed excise taxes (about 77 cents per litre)

These don't change when the price goes up. They're flat.

2. GST (15%)

Trump Threatens to Attack Iranian Energy Sites If Strait of Hormuz Isn't Reopened

By: Ryan Morgan, Epoch Times

In a social media post, the U.S. president issued a 48-hour deadline for Iranian forces to stop threatening the key Middle East waterway.

President Donald Trump threatened to strike Iranian energy facilities if Iranian forces don't reopen the Strait of Hormuz and cease all attacks on the critical waterway.

"If Iran doesn't FULLY OPEN, WITHOUT THREAT, the Strait of Hormuz, within 48 HOURS from this exact point in time, the United States of America will hit and obliterate their various POWER PLANTS, STARTING WITH THE BIGGEST ONE FIRST!" Trump wrote in a post on Truth Social. Read the article here.

Iran's Military Strategy

Editorial Reviewer's Note:

The world has been moving steadily toward centralisation of power for many years. This has led to a loss of power for individuals and communities. For example, the transforming of local borough councils into large city or district councils has meant a loss of control for many communities over their town or suburb. Strangely enough, Iran is showing us that decentralising power is actually a powerful strategy for success.

Iran's military strategy is not built around conventional battlefield dominance. It is designed as a decentralized system that continues operating even under sustained attacks. Instead of relying on centralized command structures, Iran distributes capability across regional proxies, local units, and independent launch systems.

This model includes networks such as Hezbollah, militia groups in Iraq and Syria, and long-range missile and drone systems. It also leverages asymmetric cost dynamics, where low-cost weapons can force high-cost defensive responses. Alongside military structure, geographic positioning near the Strait of Hormuz introduces economic leverage, where limited disruption can influence global oil flows and market stability.

This analysis focuses on system design, not outcomes—examining how decentralized power structures reshape modern conflict and make conventional victory conditions harder to achieve. See this informative clip here.

CIA Prepares Criminal Referral of Tucker Carlson, as Israel and Its Loyalists Demand His Arrest

As the Israel lobby gets more desperate watching the collapse of American support for their country, they also become more nakedly authoritarian to control U.S. discourse. On Friday morning, I taped an appearance on Tucker Carlson's program to discuss the ongoing Iran War, growing Israeli influence in the U.S., and proliferating attacks on free speech in the West in the name of shielding that one foreign country from critique. (I presume it will air in the next few days.) Perhaps the most notable part of our conversation was what Tucker told me prior to the cameras rolling.

Tucker said he had learned from several high-placed sources — and he obviously has many within the Trump administration — that the CIA was preparing a criminal referral

Mel Gibson, J Caviezel New Movie "Kids On Island"

Beyond the movie "Sound of Freedom"

The year 2026 has already been defined by the seismic release of the "Epstein Files," a dump of nearly 10 million documents that stripped away the redactions protecting the world's most powerful elites.

But while Washington D.C. grapples with the 300 names submitted to Congress by Attorney General Pam Bondi, a different kind of storm is brewing in California. Hollywood is reportedly in a state of "full-blown panic" following the announcement that industry veterans Mel Gibson and Jim Caviezel are joining forces for a new film titled Kids On Island.

Jim Caviezel, who became a lightning rod for controversy and a hero to millions with the success of Sound of Freedom, is not just making a sequel. Sources close to the production suggest that while Sound of Freedom focused on international trafficking in Colombia, Kids On Island aims directly at the domestic heart of the darkness: Little St. James.

US Representative Chip Roy has introduced the Let Injured Americans Be Legally Empowered \(LIABLE\) Act, a bill that would strip COVID-19 vaccine manufacturers of the federal legal immunity granted during the pandemic and allow millions of injured Americans to pursue civil lawsuits. The LIABLE Act would remove all federal laws that grant COVID-19 vaccine manufacturers immunity from civil liability for harms caused by the shots. It would also allow individuals to pursue lawsuits even if they previously filed claims through federal compensation programs, and the legislation would apply retroactively, meaning people vaccinated earlier in the pandemic could still bring legal action. If the bill becomes law, the legal reckoning would be enormous. A tsunami of lawsuits from millions of vaccine-injured Americans would slam vaccine manufacturers such as Pfizer and Moderna — potentially large enough to drive the companies into bankruptcy. -

New research from the University at Albany shows a difference in how plants absorb various types of forever chemicals when farms spread sewage sludge, raising red flags for unregulated chemicals that could contaminate crops like corn and lettuce. Sewage sludge is the end product of the wastewater treatment process that is occasionally used as fertilizer on farmland because it reduces costs for farmers. Advocates in New York have pushed to ban the practice over concerns of contamination in nearby drinking wells. Sewage sludge has been linked to human health issues such as increased risk of cancer, birth defects and other reproductive concerns, according to studies by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation is currently in the process of implementing new regulations for biosolids. The proposed regulations would not allow food crops to be grown in those fields that have been spread with sewage sludge.

The government in Australia is set to pay well over $100 million to Victorian businesses to settle a class action lawsuit brought over the state’s draconian lockdown policies. The government agreed to pay the plaintiffs $125 million to settle the case, just days before the case was set to go to trial. Some 16,500 Victorian businesses joined the class again in 2020, claiming the government was responsible for the economic devastation caused by the lockdown policies. The settlement means the key figures in the then Andrews government will not have to testify in front of an open court. Opposition Leader Jess Wilson said the settlement showed the lengths the state government would go to prevent Victorians knowing the truth. “We’re not going to see former ministers, health ministers, public servants on the stand under oath, answering questions about why they made these decisions.” As a result, Australians may never know if the decisions made by the Andrews government were related to health advice, or were even legal. - <https://www.skynews.com.au/australia-news/politics/cover-up-allan-government-silencing-victorians-with-massive-covid-lockdown-settlement/news-story/c264a2eac56dfe53542695b1f2e83e2f>

Csaba Vizi is the Hungarian-Canadian trucker from Windsor, who was viciously arrested and beaten at the Freedom Convoy in 2022. He was charged with 4 criminal charges and spent 4 years being prosecuted. In November 2025, after a grueling trial he was declared not-guilty on all counts! The judge ruled his Charter Rights were violated, specifically that his arrest and the search incident to arrest were unlawful! Csaba has now launched a lawsuit against the RCMP, the OPP, the Ottawa Police Service, and more. The Police officer who is seen on video aggressively kneeling Csaba has been identified and has been named directly in Csaba's claim. Two other officers remain unidentified. - <https://alecto.eomail4.com/web-version>

Lawyers with the Justice Centre for Constitutional Freedom are appearing in the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia on behalf of Jeffrey Evely, who is challenging the province’s ban on entering wooded areas. On August 5, 2025, Nova Scotia Premier Tim Houston banned all citizens from entering wooded areas for any purpose as part of his government’s wildfire management plan. Approximately 75% of the province is classified as wooded areas, and so the ban effectively made it illegal to step foot on most of the province. On August 8, Jeffrey Evely, a Canadian Armed Forces veteran who served Canada in two tours in Afghanistan and

Iraq, stepped into the woods near Cox Reef, Nova Scotia. Conservation officers promptly issued him a ticket for $28,872.50. What Jeffrey and JCCF lawyers are fighting is government abuse of power. For Jeffrey, this case is personal. He said, “I believe that it is important to have the woods ban proclamation reviewed in light of our Charter rights because I served in Afghanistan and Iraq. So, I know how hard-won these freedoms really are, especially once they are lost. I find the cavalier attitude with which these freedoms have been impaired to be a gross indignity to our fallen soldiers, and a moral injury to those of us still here.”

Unredacted internal emails obtained after a three-year legal battle may reshape ongoing lawsuits over New York City’s COVID-19 vaccine mandates. The records, obtained through New York’s Freedom of Information Law (FOIL), show top city officials and government lawyers working together behind the scenes to push back on religious exemption requests, privately dismissing workers’ beliefs while building arguments to help arbitrators deny them. Attorney Jimmy Wagner began filing FOIL requests in 2021. He targeted every government agency in the city of New York who had anything to do with the imposition of the vaccine mandate. The city produced thousands of documents, but key emails were heavily redacted — sometimes entirely. In 2023, after nearly a year of unsuccessful negotiations, Wagner sued. Wagner won and has since obtained the full records. Attorneys said the emails could undercut prior rulings that treated the city’s exemption process as neutral. Attorney Sujata Gibson said the newly unredacted emails change that analysis. -

Citizen Action

The NHPPA is thrilled to announce that the 157,057 signed petitions have been counted and confirmed with the Clerk of Petitions. On March 12th, 2026 they were all tabled in the House of Commons by MP Blaine Calkins. March 12th, will be forever known as The Charter of Health Freedom Day. It will go down in the history books not only as the starting point of true health freedom for Canadians, but as the third largest paper petition ever to be submitted to Parliament. This petition calls upon the Government to enact the Charter of Health Freedom. Because of the size of the petition, the Government will be obligated to give an official response. - <https://www.charterofhealthfreedom.org>

Telling It Like It Is / Truth Bombs

Former CBC host Travis Dhanraj alleged this week that he was removed from his program after raising concerns about bias at the public broadcaster. The journalist told a parliamentary committee that he was taken off the air and eventually forced out after challenging what he described as centralized editorial control and a lack of viewpoint diversity within the network. He has since filed a human rights complaint alleging discrimination and retaliation, seeking damages and calling for an investigation into CBC workplace policies. During his testimony, he also claimed that political booking decisions were tightly controlled and that Conservative voices were sometimes blocked from appearing on certain programs. CBC has rejected the allegations, saying the claims include misleading statements and false accusations, and noted that its formal response has been submitted to the Canadian Human Rights Commission.

Connie Shields summarized the testimony by John Graf at the NCI hearings in Kelowna: “Agriculture is increasingly governed not by farmers, but by systems designed far away from the land. Most Canadians rarely think about where their food comes from. We walk into a grocery store and assume that the shelves will always be full. Farmers know better, they understand how fragile the system actually is. Weather matters. Feed matters. Disease policies matter. And increasingly, regulatory decisions made in offices hundreds or thousands of miles away matter most of all. When those decisions are based on precaution alone, without proportionality or local knowledge, entire herds or flocks can disappear overnight. The public rarely sees those moments. But farmers do.”

A doctor commented on the judge who paused US Childhood Vaccine policy: “This starts to look a lot like judicial activism and overreach. The structure here is not complicated. The Secretary of Health and Human Services appoints members to ACIP. ACIP reviews evidence and makes recommendations to the CDC. That’s the process that has existed for decades. People can absolutely disagree with who was chosen or what recommendations come out of that committee—but disagreement does not make the process illegal. What this ruling essentially says is: we don’t like the people you appointed, so we’re going to stop the committee entirely. That’s a dangerous precedent. Because if courts begin stepping in simply because one side dislikes the composition of an advisory panel, then the other side will do the exact same thing the next time the political winds shift. Every committee, every recommendation, every policy decision becomes another lawsuit waiting to happen. That’s not governance—that’s paralysis. And honestly, watching it unfold feels less like serious public health policy and more like a sad political joke, which is the last thing we should be turning children’s health into. The entire process starts to feel less like governance and more like political theater.” - <https://drgator.substack.com/p/breaking-a-single-judge-just-froze>

Rod Taylor, national leader of the Christian Heritage Party of Canada, had this to say in response to the Ontario Court of Appeals Decision to deny the CHP from purchasing advertising space on bus shelters in Hamilton, Ontario. The message simply stated: ‘Woman: An Adult Female’. “Today, free speech has been given a black eye by judges who neglected to recognize our constitutional rights. Freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of conscience, freedom of association—all of these freedoms are listed in the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms and are part of our great Canadian heritage—our Christian heritage. Yet we see today that political correctness and ‘woke’ ideology have infected not only our legislatures but also our courts.” - <https://www.chp.ca/news/ontario-court-of-appeals-rules-against-free-speech?>

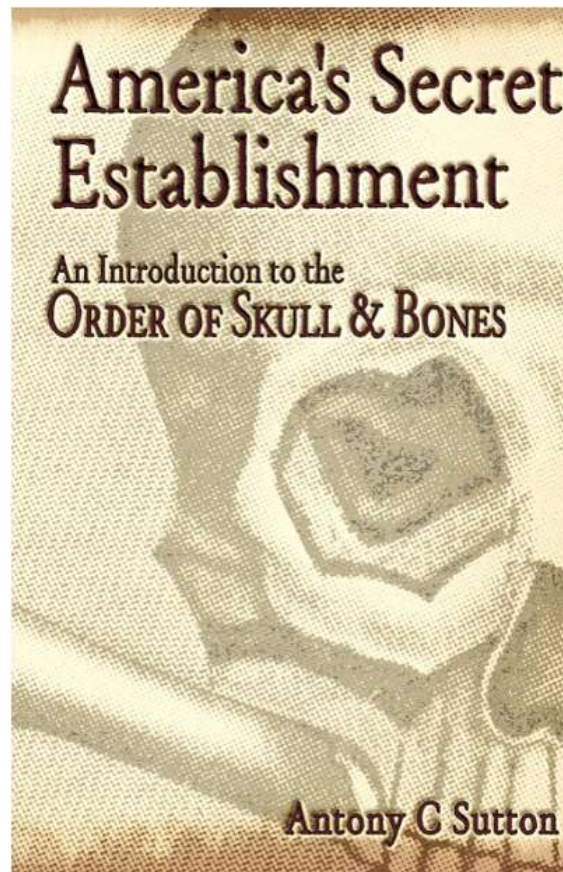

In the forward to Jan Jekielek’s powerful book about organ harvesting titled: Killed to Order, Dr. Joseph Varon notes that physicians need to remember why consent matters and “why life cannot be reduced to parts.” Varon writes: “Medicine exists to serve the human person – not the state, not ideology, not efficiency, and not power. When it forgets that, it becomes something else entirely.” Jekielek states: - “China was practicing utilitarian medicine, where some are sacrificed for betterment of the whole, not hippocratic medicine, where the person is at the core of medicine.” - <https://open.substack.com/pub/theofficialmahareport/p/on-the-bookshelf-jan-jekieleks-killed-084>

Martin Armstrong of Armstrong Economics writes: “Alberta Separation is . . . INEVITABLE, given the global trend that is becoming highly influential. I have warned that the corruption within government is always what brings down governments for thousands of years. Once a centralized government seizes power, it cannot resist exercising more and more power. This will always lead to corruption in republican forms of government, ultimately bribing people in office to do as they desire. Centralized governments inevitably lead toward core Marxism, for that never benefits the people, but yields more power for the state. This always leads to the idea that the government can control society. Taxation and regulation rise, and this becomes the seed of corruption. All nations collapse and break apart because centralized government is always inefficient. It is inevitable that a centralized government that thinks it is in charge becomes increasingly authoritarian and always seeks more power when a crisis arises, claiming it could have prevented the event if it had just had a little more power.” -

Essential Reading

Breaking 170 years of secrecy, this intriguing exposé takes a behind-the-scenes look at Yale's mysterious society, the Order of the Skull and Bones, and its prominent members, numbering among them Tafts, Rockefellers, Pillsburys, and Bushes. Explored is how Skull and Bones initiates have become senators, judges, cabinet secretaries, spies, titans of finance and industry, and even U.S. presidents, including George W. Bush. This book reveals that far from being a campus fraternity, the society is more concerned with the success of its members in the postcollegiate world. Included are a verified membership list, rare reprints of original Order materials revealing the interlocking power centers dominated by Bonesmen, and a peek inside the Tomb, their 140-year-old private clubhouse. Again, comedy is the bellwether of change, and here's a small example we found in Queenstown. The clincher? The text on the back:

"How to Play": The Best for measuring people's social distance: Simply ask your friend to pull any end of the tape. And right! Now we can talk!" Editor's Note: I'm reposting this from last issue because the image was misprinted.
